FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

TMG Government President participates in CHCI Senior Executive Leadership Roundtable in Arlington, VA

Spotsylvania, VA – July 27, 2011- TMG Government President Jim Gill will be participating in the "Generating Bold Ideas in Senior Executive Leadership" roundtable in Arlington, VA on Thursday, July 28, 2011, organized and hosted by the Center for Human Capital Innovation (CHCI) (www.tmgov.org). This learning roundtable will discuss bold ideas for senior executive development in the government. The event will include invited thought leaders from industry, such as senior leaders from IBM, GE, MIT, Monster, Computer Science Corporation, TMG Government, PDRI, Saba Corporation and Lockheed-Martin as well as senior executives from government organizations. The session will engage these representatives from public and private sector arenas in a dynamic discussion on senior leader development in the government. The objective of the roundtable is to determine an optimal framework for a federal government leadership development program for an entire agency or for government-wide application.

Mr. Gill brings a valuable perspective to this group due to his extensive background and experience in the military, governmental agencies, and the public arena. Jim has more than twenty-eight years of experience in results-oriented environments, thoroughly demonstrated at critical management positions in highly competitive and diverse organizations. Jim has varied experience as an Army Senior Non-Commissioned Officer and Combat Veteran, Executive, Entrepreneur, Venture Capitalist, and as a Human Capital and Learning Consultant to major Government Agencies including the Department of Health and Human Services, Library of Congress, Office of US Courts, GAO, DHS, NSA, DAU, US Northern Command, US Navy, and the United States Army.

Mr. Gill has led complex organizations in both the private and public sector. Jim retired from the United States Army in 2003, having served for 20 years in various operational assignments including the 193rd Infantry Brigade Panama, the 101st Air Assault Division, the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment, the 24th Infantry Division, and the United States Army Recruiting Command.

Jim was Vice President of Public Sector at Saba Software from 2009 to 2011 and Director of Government Solutions for SumTotal Systems from 2003 to 2008. Jim also served as Director of Training for the United States Army Recruiting and Retention School from 2001 to 2003.

Jim is a recognized thought leader in Human Capital Management Solutions within the Public Sector, serving as a member of the advisory board at Talent Management in Government (www.tmgov.org), has been a contributing author to Chief Learning Officer Magazine, as well as having been interviewed by Military Training Technology, the Denver Post, ASTD Magazine, Federal Computer Weekly, Government Executive Magazine and Federal News Radio. Jim is an advisor to several Technology companies including Viddler and Pirq.

He is the co-author of the recently released book: "Don't Sell Yourself Short, Be All That You Can Be!"
